

The Diverse Landscape of Environmental Policy Careers

An Info Session with Hampshire Alum Tatiana Sherman 05F

Come learn about the diverse landscape of careers that approach environmental conservation from many different angles, and the skills needed to succeed.

The conversation will include information about:

- The approaches different sectors take in shaping environmental policy
- What kind of job titles and opportunities should you be looking for to break into this field?
- How can earning a master's degree help you in this field?
- How can the International Masters of Environmental Policy program help you build the skills you need, and why consider studying environmental policy in China

Wednesday, Nov. 13, noon-1 p.m.

CORC, 3rd floor library

Lunch included

Please register in advance so we have the right amount of food. The link is also on the Daily Digest announcement.